TURNING LIFE INTO A BESTSELLER

After losing her husband in 2015, Facebook COO and author Sheryl Sandberg is penning down her personal journey to “help others learn” what she learnt. Here are a few personalities who have shared their stories and made their lives an example for others.

1. When Breath Becomes Air

By Paul Kalanithi

At the age of 36, Paul Kalanithi was diagnosed with stage IV metastatic lung cancer. When Breath Becomes Air chronicles Kalanithi's transformation from a medical student into a neurosurgeon at Stanford and finally into a patient and new father confronting his own mortality. Kalanithi died at 37. The book was completed by his wife, Lucy, and published in January 2016.

2. I Am Malala: The Girl Who Stood Up for Education and Was Shot by the Taliban

By Malala Yousafzai and Christina Lamb

On October 9, 2012, 15-year-old Malala Yousafzai was shot in the head by Taliban and survived. At 11, Malala became the youngest ever recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize. Malala's memoir, published in October 2013 and co-authored by Lamb, shares the story of her family and her journey as a young education activist.

3. Steve Jobs: The Exclusive Biography

By Walter Isaacson

Based on more than 40 interviews with Jobs conducted over two years, the book chronicles the roll-eccosser life and intense personality of the man who revolutionised the tech industry. The book was released on October 24, 2011, 19 days after Jobs's death.

4. The Test of My Life: From Cricket to Cancer and Back

By Yuvraj Singh, Nishant Jey Arora, Sharda Ugra

Yuvraj Singh was awarded the Player of the Tournament honour at World Cup 2011. And then came the news that he had been battling cancer throughout the tournament. In his inspirational autobiography, published in 2013, Singh spoke of his journey from one of the most successful cricketers in India and a role model to the horrors of chemotherapy.

5. Wings of Fire

By APJ Abdul Kalam
